

WINE OF THE WEEK

CAMERON HUGHES LOT 220 | chardonnay

We all have those guilty pleasure wines. You know, those wines that you would hate for your 'smart' wine friends to know that you really like.

This is one of those wines. There are a million "Fat, buttery, chunky, creamy" Chardonnays out there. Problem is, most of them are overdone, clobbered with oak & lack essential acidity. Then there are the big, luscious, juicy ones that have all the fat fruit, toasty oak, buttery yumminess & still hold on to a lovely sense of balance.

This is one of those wines.

Pears, apples & a touch of banana on the nose. Classic buttery qualities, with flavors of meyer lemon, sorbet & subtle baking spice on the finish. Full-bodied & fat with toasty oak, vanilla & toasted marshmallow (seriously) notes this is the Chardonnay that you will hate to love - or love to hate?
